The following list groups airports by region, then subgroups them by area. Non-primary airports are listed by color-coded airport groupings (red, blue, and green), along with an NCDOT code describing the role an airport plays in a community, determined by a scoring methodology that includes economic development data and socioeconomic conditions. Primary commercial service airports have met a threshold number of passengers that board planes, regardless of economic conditions and are color-coded yellow.

Each airport includes the airport name, three-letter code, location, and its APM.
